THE SUNSHINE STATE

FLORIDA WATER STORIES

In partnership with the Florida Humanities Council

CALLING ALL RISING HIGH SCHOOL JUNIORS AND SENIORS!

Join us for a seven-day, six-night exploration of Florida's waters that mixes college level classes, hands-on activities, and field trips with the power of storytelling.

June 11-17, 2017

Experience the unique history and culture of North Central Florida, by diving into Florida's Springs, handling original historical documents, debating ethical water use, exploring Native American life along the Gulf Coast, and seeing water futures through art and science fiction.

Explore college life by staying in UF's Hume Hall, the UF Honors Residential College, and enjoying social activities around the campus.

Work with 28 other students, and leading UF and Santa Fe College faculty and students, to explore what humanities disciplines like history, English, women's studies, philosophy, archaeology, Latin American Studies, religion, and classics teach us about Florida's water crises. And learn digital storytelling tools to share Florida's water stories with others. By experiencing and doing research in the humanities, students will explore how our cultural and historical experiences with water help us to address Florida's pressing water issues in the future.
