Practical Tips for School Leaders – #11

May 6, 2020

In one of the earlier Leadership Learning posts, I provided information on Innovator's Mindset the work of George Couros (2014). Today I am inviting you to engage in the process of reflective practice by considering the following questions.

- Which of the 8 characteristics of the Innovator Mindset have come to the forefront in your work during the past six weeks?
- How competent are you in operationalizing the characteristics you selected? How do you model the skill for those you lead?
- Which characteristics may be a barrier/challenge for you? Why?

A reflective practitioner thinks about their practice, applies new information and skills, and shares with colleagues. How are you a reflective practitioner?

8 Characteristics of the “Innovator’s Mindset”
